Business Accounting and Taxation (BAT)

Still need options before deciding what to do after B.com?

Business Accounting and Taxation (BAT) Course is a program that is meticulously designed by industry experts to groom aspirants to become industry-ready for accounting job roles. It is an excellent career option for B.Com graduates. In this program, you will not only engage in practical and experiential learning but also master some of the most in-demand tools of the accounting and taxation industry and one of the best courses after b.com.

The course learning modules comprise of topics like financial reporting using ERP software, finalization of financial statements, goods and service tax (GST), direct taxation, payroll components ESIC, and Excel and MIS reporting.

After completing this intensive course, you can choose from an array of promising job profiles, such as tax consultant, corporate legal assistant, company law assistant, finance manager, accounts executive, and tax analyst, to name a few.

The average salary for BAT skills usually ranges between Rs. 4 LPA.

CERTIFIED MANAGEMENT ACCOUNTANT (CMA)

CMA is the answer if you are thinking about a career after B.Com in abroad. In this course, you will have to clear two stages of examination along with a work experience of 2 years.

The Certified Management Accountant (CMA) is another globally acknowledged professional certification credential that is offered by the Institute of Management Accountants in the USA. It focuses on two fields – management accounting and financial management. If you possess this certification, it means that you are competent and knowledgeable in areas like financial planning, analysis, control, decision support, and professional ethics. To be a CMA-certified professional, you must clear two stages of examination and also have a work experience of two years.

After obtaining the CMA certification, you can find employment opportunities in organizations of all sizes and across all industries. From public and private enterprises and not-for-profit organizations to academic institutions, Government entities (USA), and MNCs – CMA-certified professionals are always in-demand.

Average salary of CMA is Rs. 8.1 LPA in India

US Certified Public Accounting (CPA)

Another globally-recognized professional designation in our list is Certified Public Accountant. It is offered by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) and one of the best courses after b.com. To pursue this course, you must possess in-depth knowledge of generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP). To obtain the CPA license, you must have a solid background in accounting, along with extensive education (at least 150 hours) and pass a rigorous four-part exam.

CPAs are responsible for preparing financial statement audits and other attestation services to help inform investors about the financial health of companies and firms. Also, they offer advice on taxes and financial planning to both corporations and individuals. Their primary duty is to provide financial reporting and advisory services to encourage informed decision-making and foster financial growth.

The average salary of CPAs in India is Rs. 6.9 LPA.

Financial Risk Manager (FRM)

For a recognized degree in banking and finance, FRM is an excellent option.

The designation of Financial Risk Manager (FRM) is offered by the Global Association of Risk Professionals (GARP®). It is the gold standard in the financial and risk management industry. If you obtain this certification, it indicates that you have a sound understanding of risk management concepts in the present dynamic financial market. This is a relatively short-term course of nine months.

To become an FRM-certified professional, you must complete GARP's FRM Program. Exams are usually conducted in two parts in May and November. FRM is one of the best courses after b.com.

A Financial Risk Manager's primary job duty is to identify and analyze threats to the company assets, earning capacity, and its performance or success in the market. Financial Risk Managers can work in sales, private banking, loan origination, credit/market risk, trading, marketing, and financial services.

After completing this course, your average salary range will be anywhere between Rs 10 – 18 LPA in India.
